

The Sewall-Belmont House & Museum along with the White House News Photographers Association requests the pleasure of your company to the opening reception of

Pro-Active Woman

An exhibit by Sharon Farmer

Tuesday, February 19th, 2008
6:30-8:30PM

Sewall-Belmont House & Museum
144 Constitution Ave., NE (next to the Hart Senate Office Building)
Washington, DC 20002

RSVP requested to: rsvp@sewallbelmont.org or 202-546-1210 x23

This photographic exhibit by photojournalist Sharon Farmer, Pro-Active Woman, is a declarative statement on the politics, creativity, evolution, and persistence of women to make a better world. A pro-active woman becomes the vital connector that stimulates events that impact our lives in many important ways.

Sharon Farmer has recorded some of the most memorable moments in our history. Her documentation of communities in the Washington Metropolitan area led to an appointment in 1993 as an Official White House Photographer of President Bill Clinton's administration, and later she became the first woman Director of White House Photography.

Unable to make the opening? The exhibit may be viewed during Museum hours through May 31st, 2008.

This exhibit is a proud partnership of the Sewall-Belmont House & Museum and the White House News Photographers Association.

